Savill Gardens

Englefield Green

A fine 35 acre woodland garden, which contains a variety of Rhododendrons, Camellias, Magnolias as well as a great range of other trees and shrubs creating a wealth of colours especially in spring and summer.

Nymans

Haywards Heath

Nymans combines formal gardens with wild and woodland gardening and includes rare and beautiful plants collected from around the world. The gardens have been developed over the last 100 years and have a wide collection of Rhododendrons, Magnolias, Camellias and Eucryphias. Its special features are the walled garden with its fountain, the hidden sunken garden, romantic ruins and woodland walks.

Leonardslee Gardens

Horsham

The 240 acres of Leonardslee Gardens offer a wide range of colours and attractions throughout the seasons. There are 7 lakes, a wide collection of Rhododendrons, Azaleas, Magnolias and Camellias. There is an excellent bonsai exhibition in the Walled Japanese garden. The garden was started by Sir Edmund Loder, a member of the family that introduced the famous Rhododendron Loderi hybrids in 1901.

Parham House

Pulborough

There are four acres of gardens at this Elizabethan house which have been planted to provide interest throughout the year. Spring is particularly impressive, with the splendid sacred grove of Mount Fuji white flowering cherry which is over 50 years old.

Sheffield Park Garden

Uckfield

An impressive 100 acre garden, with five lakes linked by cascades and waterfalls, laid out in the 18th century by Capability Brown. There are many mature trees, rare shrubs, waterlilies, bluebells and daffodils. The Stream Garden is particularly attractive with primulas, hosta, astilbes and other moisture loving plants.

Great Dixter

Northiam

Probably one of the best known gardens in Britain. It is a plantsman's garden much of which has been designed and constructed by the Lloyd family who have owned the fifteenth century house since 1910.

Brighton

Brighton is one of the most famous British seaside towns. It became a popular resort in the late 1700's when The Prince of Wales, later George IV, had the Brighton Pavillion built. It is an 'extravaganza topped by domes, minarets and green copper cupolas'. The Lanes, which date from the 18th century, contain many antique shops and give an insight into the original medieval village.
